COTTON EXCHANGE ENJOINED

BUT INJUNCTION ORDER SUS-PENDED AT MIDNIGHT.

beedere H. Price Get It From Justice Bischoff, Alleging Improprieties at. Least of Classification—It Forbade the Exchange to De a Long List of Things.

Theodore H. Price has brought an injunction suit against the New York Cotton Exchange and in particular against its classification committee. A temporary injunction was granted yesterday morning by Justice Bischoff of the Supreme Court.
At midnight last night Henry W. Taft, on behalf of the Cotton Exchange, went to the home of Justice Bischoff and told him that the injunction would have a disastrou effect on dealings in cotton to-day. Justice Bischoff then modified his order so that the injunction does not go into effect unless after a hearing a permanent injunction is

The most sensational suggestion in the complaint is that the committee has

The suit is along the same lines as the petition lodged by Congressman Livingston of Georgia and President Harvie Jordan of the uthern Cotton Association in January, asking for a fraud order forbidding the use of the United States mails by the exchange. Nothing ever came of that, but a big fight was stirred up in the exchange itself which resulted in several changes in the contract system. These changes were not radical enough, in the opinion of a good many of the members, and there exists still a strong reform party which, it is said, is not entirely out of sympathy with Mr. Price.

Mr. Price was formerly a member of the exchange and he sets up to be acting for its best interests in bringing the action. The things which the classification committee are enjoined from doing are all also if not absolutely forbidden by the by-laws of the exchange at least against all the of the United States mails by the exchange.

Mr. Price specifies twelve things in which

Air. Price specifies twelve things in which the committee has erred.

They are in substance as follows: That the samples classified are not properly tagged for identification; that so long a time is frequently allowed to elapse between the drawing of samples from bales and the classification that the samples are training to the committee of the and the classification that the samples no longer truly represent the grade of the bele; that the committee has not before it any types of the quarter grades nor of the singed and stained cottons; that the standard of classification varies; that the committee does not refer to such standards as it has in making the classifications; that members have yielded and are yielding to pressure and undue influence which has been during the past year and is now from time to time brought to bear upon has been during the past year and is now from time to time brought to bear upon them to produce an overclassification in favor of the seller, and to prevent a fair and impartial classification of cotton submitted to it; that bluish, spotted, tinged, stained or nondescript cotton has been classified as white cotton; that a great amount of cotton has been classified within the grades deliverable which is below the lowest grade deliverable and should have been rejected; that in reclassifying cotton heen rejected; that in reclassifying ootton which has already been classified the com-mittee, instead of comparing it with its standards, has allowed itself to be influstandards, has allowed itself to be influenced by the records of its former classification; that the inspectors have disregarded the order of the Inspector-in-Chief to "carefully inspect and sample, in duplicate, each mark of cotton submitted for inspection, a cache came-time classing; the cotton, each class under a different lot number;" and that cotton containing sufficient sand and dirt to make it unmerchantable has not been rejected.

Officials of the exchange did not have much to say yesterday in regard to the suit except that they thought their defence would be ample. It was pointed out that any cotton classified by the exchange could be redelivered through the exchange at any cotton classified by the exchange could be redelivered through the exchange at the same classification, and that if anybody could show that he had incurred loss by a classification a special fund to pay him damages was provided by the exchange. In a pamphlet issued yesterday Mr. Price sets forth in elaborate form his reasons for the suit. He says that throughout practically the entire cotton growing community of the United States it is the opinion that abuses of the grossest sort have been allowed to grow up in the classification department of the New York Cotton Exchange. In support of this he cites a number of articles from Southern newspapers and the fact that six cotton States have passed statutes "which practically prohibit trading on the New York Cotton Exchange."

Some of the members of the exchange contradict Mr. Price's charges fiatly.

DISPUTE OVER A CORD OF STOCK. Number of Shares Involved 20,000, but

Value is Placed at $1,600. John W. Cavanagh of 344 Hudson street. formerly the Eastern manager for the mine promoting company of Patrick, Elliott & promoting company of Patrick, killett & Camp of Goldfield, Nev., with offices at 11 Wall street, was held yesterday in $2,000 ball on a short affidavit charging the larceny of $1,600 worth of the company's stocks. The complaint was presented by Assistant District Atterney Krotel, who told Magistrate Breen in the Tombs police court that he had examined the books of the concern and that he was convinced that Cavanagh had overdrawn his account with that company at least $40,000. Mr. Krotel said that the real complainant was M. F. O'Farrell, a young man 23 years old, who had in a short time risen from being bookkeeper of the firm to owning a controlling interest.

The $1,600 represents the valuation placed on 16,000 shares of Manhattan Combination and a like number of Manhattan Buffalo, which, it is alleged, Cavanagh has taken from the firm. Cavanagh admitted yesterday that he had taken the stocks and that he still had them in his possession, but declared that they were stocks which had been regularly allotted to him and charged to his account with the company.

C. H. Tucker, the present New York man-Camp of Goldfield, Nev., with offices at 11

clared that they were stocks which had been regularly allotted to him and charged to his account with the company.

G.H. Tucker, the present New York manager for Patrick, Elliott & Camp, was formerly an expert accountant with the American Audit Company. He was called in, he says, to straighten out the books in the office at 11 Wall street after Cavanagh had been in charge for some time. Tucker said yesterday that he found things in an awful mess and finally called in O'Farrell, who fired Cavanagh and placed Tucker in charge. Cavanagh, in turn, says that it was Tucker's own fault if he couldn't understand the bookkeeping system, as he had had an elaborate one devised especially for the office by the American Audit Company, where Tucker was trained.

After Cavanagh left the office he sued the

by the American Audit Company, where Tucker was trained.

After Cavanagh left the office he sued the company for $50,000 for breach of contract, and later sued Tucker for defamation of character. Both suits are still pending. Justice Bischoff in the slander suit issued an order of arrest against Tucker, who gave $1,000 bail. P. A. McManus, Cavanagh's counsel, said yesterday that no answer had as yet been filed in either suit. W. F. S. Hart, Tucker's lawyer, says that there won't be until after Cavanagh has been tried on the larceny charge, as the other two suits will be off if Cavanagh is convicted. The case will come up for examination next Tucketh. Interests, first Tagether.

GOSSIP OF WALL STREET.

The Wall Street lawyers divided the financial community yesterday with their contests and disputes. The subject of their wrangles was the plan to form a holding company to take over the securities owned by Union Pacific, and the particular phase of it about which argument waxed warm was the right of the preferred stock to priority in any distribution under the alleged plan to make a bonus of the stock of the new concern. It was hotly contended in some quarters that the preferred stock would be entitled to share at least equally with the common in any distribution that might be made, and with still less moderation was the opposite contention less moderation was the opposite contention supported in other places. The noise seemed to be on the side of the latter, the argument on the side of the other. The more reason argument, too, was in a measure corrobe argument, too, was in a measure correspondent of a semantional advance in the preferred stock on transactions in a comparatively few shares. This made the opposition all the more boisterous, and the advecates of the claims of the preferred the more dignified by contrast, the latter being apparently satisfied that the future would justify their attitude.

The gist of the argument about the claims of Union Pacific preferred to participate in any disposition that might be made of the company's holdings of securities was as follows: The preferred stock would probably be held to be preferred as to assets as well as to dividends. The reorganization plan set no limitation as to how far the preferred has no limitation as to how far the preferred has preference over the common, and therefore it would probably be interpreted as making the former preferred in all respects. A prior claim to the assets being therefore apparently established, the company could not distribute its heldings of stocks in a way that results had a second to this claim. not distribute its heldings of stooks in a way that would not fully recognize this claim. How far the courts might be willing to recognize the right of the preferred became all the more interesting in view of the spinion recently rendered by Vice-Chamcellor Ptiney of New Jersey wherein he rather favored the contention that the preferred stock of a company is entitled to all agests, the common representing only good will. If the preferred stock could be retired the difficulty would of course disappear, but apparently the company had no power to retire it except the making some proposition which the holdby making some proposition which the hold-ere might accept or reject at their option. Here then is the obstacle to the carrying out of any plan to segregate the Union Pacific of any plan to segregate the Union Pacific investments from the railroad and make them the basis of a distribution exclusively for the benefit of the common stock. If it was merely a question of rights on a new issue of common stock the common, because the privilege to the common, because the placing of new securities behind the preferred would not affect the latter's value, but the distribution of assets which now help to give the preferred its value would be another matter.

At different times in the past couple of years attention has here been called to the excellent market always maintained for Union Pacific preferred. In no sense was there speculation in the stock, but no broker there speculation in the stock, but no broker whe got an order to sell from an investor seeking to realize on his holdings could fail to be struck by the case with which he could dispose of his offerings at the market. It has even happened at times that a careful broker having a large lot succeeded in getting better than the current market quotation and the structure of what stressed. —a condition the very reverse of what existed in other inactive issues. Another fact that impressed houses that had selling orders in the stock from time to time was that nearly all their sales were made to the same brokers This pointed to steady, careful accumula-tion, and the probability is that to-day the stock is very largely in the hands of in-siders, and of institutions and other investors siders, and of institutions and other investors friendly to them. Continued accumulation cleared the way for the advance that made the stock one of the features of the market yesterday and established belief in the stories about a holding company as an essential article of the Wall Street creed. The buying of the stock by a floor trader did not look significant, but its very insignificance made the response to it all the more impressive.

In Union Pacific common there was a resumption of the buying by the interests which had been the most conspicuous buyers before the reaction a couple of days ago. On Monday and Tuesday these interests on memay and luesdy these interests sold stock—threw out some ballast—but the opinion was then expressed in very good quarters, and has since been justified, that on a moderate reaction the stock should be bought for a further advance. When the advance was renewed traders were ready to get aboard and their operations, combined with those of the pool, easily sufficed to send the price up to a new high level for this move

A few tips like that circulated on Monday— when Union Pacific was selling around 145— that before the end of the week the stock would advance to 150, might revive interest in this kind of prediction. While tips coninue to make good the professional trader at least is always ready to play them.

Southern Pacific sympathized with Union to a greater extent that on any previous day since the movement in the latter began, alstock was heard that had not figured in the referred to good earnings and the prospect for an increase in the dividend next August.

One of the shrewdest brokers in Wall Street made the remark that "Union Pacific pre-ferred has always been preferred by the directors." "Knowing how it is held," he said, "I would bet on it every time."

That Union Pacific will need to do som new financing this year is recognized every where. One story is that plans have already where. One story is that plans have already taken shape for an issue of $75,000,000 bonds, and the success of the Atchison issue leaves little doubt as to what would be the outcome if Union Pacific should seek to raise money in a similar way. Of course, it is not to be expected that if convertible bonds were issued they would be made convertible at per, and there is a revival of the rumore about the sale of the preferred stock in the about the sale of the preferred stock in the company's treasury that a couple of years ago were quite familiar to every one in Wall Street. It is recalled that when the $100,000,000 additional preferred stock was authorized in May, 1905, it was very strongly intimated that it would be sold at par from time to time in order to pay for securities acquired or for other purposes "to an extent reestablishing the formerly existing proportions between the common and the preferred stocks."

Those who in the early stages of the Union Pacific movement contended that the rise was based on the short interest have difficulty in maintaining their contention in view of the fact that the borrowing demand for the stock is very small. This and that speculator are mentioned as being short, but apparently such stories proceed from the bears who were forced to cover, and are therefore sore, or from belated bulls who hope by belitting the movement to get an opportunity to ge aboard. Viewed superficially the operation in the stock are of the purely professional order, but it is well to remember that so-called professionalism has often been a clock to conceal the most significant kind of ac-

Buying of a high class could be seen in Amalgamated Copper, and that the feeling in regard to the outlook for the trade was as cheerful on the other side of the Atlantic as it had become here was the natural in-ference from the advance in the London copper market and in the price of Rio Tinto. the stock of the leading European copper mining company. It was said that a strong pool had been formed to boost Amalgamated, but if this was so it had to be conceded that operations had not gone beyond the ac-cumulation stage, for apparently the buyers were much more concerned in getting etock in quantity than in marking up quotations.

Next to the advance in Union Pacific the Next to the advance in Union Pacino the steady strength of Pennsylvania did most to inspire confidence in the market. The volume of Pennsylvania is so great and the stock so widely distributed that no speculative clique would attempt a bullish operation in it except under favorable circumstances as to the general market. New York, N. Y., April 26, 1907.

General buying is what a rise in the stock usually reflects. Pennsylvania to a greater extent than any other railroad represents the general business of the country. The road practically controls the iron and steel traffic of the Pittsburg district, is a large factor in the bituminous and anthracite oal trades, and as it is a trunk line with ramiloations extending through all the territory from the Eastern seaboard to St. Louis and from Louisville to Chicago, its tonnage comes from all quarters and from all lines of business. It is believed that the statement of earnings for March, published on Wednesday, practically marked the highest level of operating expenses and that from now on the net will make a better showing relatively to the gross earnings than in the first three months of the year. As for the technical position of the stock evidence is not wanting of the existence of a large short interest, to force covering. Some close observers of the position United States Steel said there appeared to be a good demand for the stock in the loan crowd, although the shorts seemed to be in no hurry to cover. It was thought just possible that the large interests were encouraging the sherts to remain short so that their position might be availed of later when an impetus was needed for an upward movement.

Outside of a few issues the market is still very inactive, but every experienced operator recognizes that this has often been characteristic of important bull movements before the public took hold and gave breadth to the trading. The parrowness of the market is a very satisfactory condition considering the existing money situation.

The heavy frosts of the last two nights extended all over the Western and Southwestern States, and the brokers had reports from numerous directions that the frost had "got" the wheat.

The traders also heard that the green bugs were busy, and with two such active enemies of the plant at work, they clamored for wheat as if there was to be none left for next year's bread. They bid the price of July wheat up to 85% in their excitement, the price at the end of yesterday's session having been 85%.

Preparations are being made by the Rock Island to build a line that will give the road the shortest route from Chicago to Mobile and eventually from Chicago to New Orand eventually from Chicago to New Or-leans. The line in question is to connect the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, one of the subsidiaries of the Rock Island, with the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City. The Eastern Illinois has a southern terminus at Evansville and another at Joppa, Ill., further to the southwest. The new line will probably be built from Evansville through Joppa to Jackson, Tenn., the northern terminus of the Mobile. This will not necessitate the construction of more than 275 miles of road.

The present population of the country, which is used as the basis in calculating the per capita, is estimated at $5,858,000 souls.

THE COTTON MARKET. Prices Advance-Cold in the Southwest

-Cables Better Than Expected. The situation showed a good deal ofstrength in the face of considerable liquidation. Profit taking is certainly natural after an advance of over 100 points. But the market took the cotton very well. The weather was too cold in Texas, and even lower temperatures were predicted. In sections of the Southwest the season is some weeks late and it is also for the most part a week or two late east of the Mississippi, though the weather there now is very much more favorable than it was a short time ago. There is less rain and temperatures are higher and more seasonable. Still the recent weather and crop scares have aroused not a little builish sentiment, es-pecially as trade is still very good and there is still not a little fear of a further squeeze in July. Room traders tried to sell the market down and had a certain amount of success for a time coincident with the selling to take profits. But there is more disposition among outsiders to buy for a rise and it goes without saying that if the outside buying reaches saying that if the outside buying reaches anything like its old time proportions it will take the market away from the professionals.

Miller & Co. said: "What is needed new is a prolonged spell of good weather with much more reasonable temperatures than we have had for some time, and until then the only wise course will be to buy on soft spots. Much of the trading was professional, New Orleans selling more or less of the more distant months, with the outside public by no means disinter-ested, and becoming impressed by the weather news. The culmination of the rise cannot be looked upon until we have had assurance of a good start for the crop."

Little Rock, Ark.—"The cotton crop has got a very poor start in this State, caused by very cold and wet weather during the last three wecks. March was an exceedingly good month for preparation of the land, but April has been a very bad month. I came through West Tennessee on Tuesday last and from Memphis to Little Rock and I was more than surprised to see at least 20 per cent. of the land wholly unprepared and stalks still standing thereon that a plough had never touched. With the replanting necessary and the lack of labor, I think that our acreage will be as small, if not smaller, than last year.

Charlotte, N. C.—I returned yesterday from a trip through Mississippi, Albams and Georgia. Preparation is extra good, but the early planting was killed and much replanting is necessary, making a late start generally. Still there is no danger that cannot be overcome with favorable weather for the next thirty ways. I found stocks of cotton very small everywhere except at Mississippi points and there is now an active demand for the low grades. I estimate were will be no cotton held by planters and the rewell see the place to buy."
